

Beauty Insiders

E-MAIL PRINT

Columnist Andrea Pomerantz Lustig and writer-editors Tram Kim Nguyen and Stephanie Huszar take you behind the scenes in Beautyland.

THE GIRLS IN THE BEAUTY DEPARTMENT

GLAMOUR BLOGS ▶

Style, Beauty, Life, Celebs—we've got a blogger for almost everything

New! Captain KJ

Alyssacentric

Slaves to Fashion

The Girls in the Beauty Department

Suze on Style

Life with Cancer

Did You Hear?

FREE! FREE! FREE! ▶

Giant Spring Giveaway

Enter for your chance to win some of this season's hottest luxe items

GORGEOUS HAIR ▶

ARCHIVES

March 2007 (43)

February 2007 (40)

January 2007 (46)

December 2006 (43)

November 2006 (43)

October 2006 (44)

September 2006 (22)

August 2006 (25)

July 2006 (22)

June 2006 (23)

Eau de...Brooklyn

I love the neighborhood where I live (Cobble Hill, Brooklyn), so I'm kind of a sucker for Brooklyn-themed stuff. I was browsing around in a shop this weekend when I spotted the most adorable-looking tin of soaps labeled "Eau de Brooklyn." They had a really fresh, crisp, citrusy scent, although it's not exactly how the streets around here smell. Anyway, I couldn't quite figure out what the exact notes were, but when I went home, a quick Google search revealed it was tea and bergamot. Such a cool combination. The company is coming out with a fragrance, too, which I can't wait to try.

—Stephanie

March 30, 2007